We invite you to participate with us in a workshop (April 21-22) led by Dr. Martha Summerville focused on various ways in which we are all courageous in our work in the world. Together we will explore questions about the context of our work, the personal resources we bring to our work, and what it might mean for us to be consciously engaged and in a continuing process of personal growth through this courageous engagement. During this interactive workshop, Martha Summerville will offer her framework for consideration of these questions from multiple perspectives and tools for further exploration.

We are excited to be offering a workshop led by this close friend who has been centrally involved with us imagining and bringing into reality Common Light. Our friendship with her began in the 1970s when, as Martha Wence, she graced and challenged our classes in English and Religious Studies at Guilford College. Because of her current work as executive coach and organizational consultant, she has a contagious passion for the subject of this workshop—Courage To Be at Work: The Power of Self. Based in New Haven, CT, she specializes in organization development and effectiveness, executive consultation and leadership development, and board development. Her expertise derives from over 20 years experience helping colleagues in small and large organizations successfully reach challenging goals, untangle perplexing dilemmas, and develop leadership capability through “best-fit” solutions.

For more information about Martha, see on our website the recent flier “Common Light Illumines Your Work Life” that tells about her along with information about Catherine Clement and her workshop March 24-25 on Compassionate Communication.

The workshop takes place at Common Light Meetingplace, in a wooded setting at the confluence of Flat Creek and Swannanoa River, and weather permitting, there will be a pleasant lunch on the deck. It runs April 21-22, beginning Friday at 5:00 pm and going through Saturday 9:00 am - 5:00 pm. The fee, including dinner and lunch, is $75. As always, scholarships are available. Registration closes April 14, so let us hear from you soon!
